SHORT TERM MACROALGAE EXPERIMENT

Two sampling campaigns, aiming to assess the tourism impact on marine coastal areas through short-term experiments with macroalgae, were carried out in June (low-tourist season) and August (high-tourist season) 2017 in Cyprus and Sicily (Italy).

In both islands, macroalgae collected from a pristine site were deployed for 3 days within small nylon net bags, in a high-tourist site (Paralimni and Giardini Naxos respectively in Cyprus and Sicily) and in a control site with very low flux of tourists (Cavo Greco and Fondaco Parrino respectively in Cyprus and Sicily).
